TSW gets $285M boost

*$17 million designated for county's dams
and bridges*

ANGELICA BLENICH

Staff Reporter

Barry Devolin says he doesn't often use the word delighted, but when he gets more than a quarter of a billion dollars in funding for his riding the word seems more than appropriate.

The MP made the announcement in various locations across his riding this past weekend, stopping in Minden on June 20 to announce $285 million in infrastructure upgrades for the Trent-Severn Waterway.

Of that funding, $17 million will go towards repairing or replacing dams and bridges within Haliburton County, including the Kennisis Lake dam, Haliburton, Redstone West, Victoria Road, Norland Lake, Eels Lake East, Twelve Mile Lake, Halls Lake, Hawk Lake, Red Pine Lake and Horseshoe Lake.

Area bridges to receive upgrades are the Eagle Lake Bridge and Whites Lake bridge near Gooderham.

The biggest expense within the county will be the Kennisis Lake dam, where work has already begun to repair the

OPP warn of phone scam hitting the Highlands

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

It's the "season of scams" according to OPP Sgt. Peter Leon, and Highlands residents should be alert to one in particular circulating the area.

Both the Canadian Anti-Fraud Call Centre and the Minden detachment of the OPP have been notified of residents receiving phone calls from a man claiming to be a lawyer or representative for the Canada Revenue Agency. The caller claims the resident owes CRA money due to tax reassessment and threatens court action or other consequences, such as a home lien or poor credit rating if the owner doesn't pay thousands of dollars immediately.

While warnings have also been issued regarding a similar email scam, the scammer in this new version can even provide a return phone number with an Ottawa area code in an attempt to appear legitimate.

"They're taking the basic scam and twisting it to their benefit," said Leon.

New technology has allowed perpetrators to copy legitimate phone numbers in an act called "spoofing." When the copied number appears on call display it can both hide the caller's actual origin and give the caller a way to appear authentic.

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School students and members of the eco-team Krista Duncan, left, and Alex Litwin hand over 200 student signatures gathered in support of the Blue Dot movement to Carolyn Coburn, representing Environment Haliburton on June 15. The signatures were gathered on Earth Day following a presentation of a video outlining the movement, which inspired the student body, said Krista. Approximately half the school signed the petition, which will be presented to local municipalities this fall by EH representatives. Coburn called the effort “remarkable.” Blue Dot is a movement by the David Suzuki Foundation focused on Canadians wanting the right to live in a healthy environment.

Trolling motor stolen

On June 12, members from the Haliburton Highlands Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were contacted regarding the theft of a trolling motor from a residence on County Road 503 in Highlands East. Sometime on June 12, between 7:45 and 8 p.m. unknown person(s) stole a blue and grey two horse power Yamaha trolling motor. Anyone having information on this crime or any others is asked to contact the Haliburton Highlands OPP at 1-888-310-1122. Anonymous information can also be reported to Crime Stoppers by calling 1-800-222-8477 (TIPS) or online at www.khcs.ca, where you may be eligible to receive a cash reward of up to $2,000.

Impaired driver

Members of the Haliburton Highlands Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have charged a Dysart et al man following a traffic complaint. On Saturday, June 13, just before 4 p.m., OPP received a complaint of a possible impaired driver on Kennisis Lake Road in Dysart et al. Police conducted patrols and located the vehicle on Highland Street in Haliburton. The stop revealed that the adult male driver was under the influence of alcohol. As a result of this investigation, 45-year-old man of Dysart et al, has been charged with Impaired Driving contrary to section 253(1)(a) of the Criminal Code, Driving with Over .80 mg of Alcohol in his Blood contrary to section 253(1)(b), Drive while Disqualified contrary to section 259(4). He is scheduled to appear in Ontario Court of Justice in Minden on Aug. 5 to answer to his charges.

Driver facing charges

On Friday, June 19 at 12:13 a.m., the OPP received a call reporting a vehicle was parked in the middle of County Road 503. The vehicle was not running, all the lights were out and there was a man passed out behind the wheel. Officers from the Haliburton Highlands detachment were immediately dispatched. Prior to police arrival it was reported that the vehicle had been moved to the shoulder by a passerby and that the keys had been secured. It was also reported that the lone male occupant had fled the area on foot. Upon police arrival a search was conducted of the area and a man was located nearby and arrested. The accused is a 57-year-old man from Highlands East. He was taken to the Haliburton Highlands Detachment and held until sober. He is facing the following charges:
1. Care or Control While Impaired (Alcohol).
2. Care or Control Over 80 mgs.
3. Dangerous Operation of Motor Vehicle.
He is scheduled to answer to the charges on Aug. 5 in the Minden court.

Students' business profits from life lessons in Junior Achievement

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Six Junior Achievement Company program participants learned even in business there is more to it than money.

After close to a 40 year hiatus, this program returned to the Highlands to allow Grade 12 students Jessica Karaguesian, Curran Chambers, Cierra Hurley, Trey Kyle, Lucus Esson and Krista Duncan, to form the company Wink that produced, marketed and sold wooden coasters with local images.

Junior Achievement fosters an opportunity for students to become entrepreneurs risk free, as it provides support and guidance from local business mentors and the Junior Achievement Peterborough Lakeland Muskoka over an 18-week period starting in December.

Open to all high school students, these teens not only learned how to run a business, which earned a 20 per cent return for its shareholders and a profit for the company, but also yielded incredible life lessons.

Hurley, vice-president of human resources, said she cannot express enough how much value she derived from the past few months with Wink.

"I think every one of us here has a different path that we're going on. No matter what you're doing in life you can take the lessons you learn in life and apply them to anything, really," she said. "So, I think it's a really good idea to do this program because you learn a lot more than running a business. You learn important things like team work and you learn so much about yourself."

The company sourced raw material from the Halibur-ton Forest and Wild Life Reserve, produced, marketed and sold coasters with different themes with images chosen to reflect the community, Karaguesian said.

Initially, shares were sold to cover the cost of raw materials and start-up.

During the past few months, the teenagers overcame production challenges and learned how important time management and communication are to a business's success. All of the coasters produced were sold.

Karaguesian pointed out being flexible to customer demands was important to revenue. The company sold sets of coasters and listened to and met requests to sell them individually.

Once the program concluded the company was dissolved and the shareholders were repaid.

Mentor and branch manager of the Haliburton Bank of Montreal Richard Wannan was amazed at how the students evolved from a group of six students into a functional and successful business.

"We saw them come together as six individuals who knew themselves, but in the end six individuals that were a team, that were a company, that were an entity. To say I'm proud is truly beyond it," he said.

From the first shareholders' meeting, he said, this group excelled, and matured beyond their years. He said they will be the standard of excellence for future students.

"It's going to be a tough group to ever meet and match ever again," he said.

Wannan credited the overall program success to program manager Sara McGriskin.

The group's other mentors were Janine Papadopolous, owner of Into the Blue Bakery and Cheryl McCombe, business manager of The Highlander newspaper.

The company and its mentors met once a week for two hours upstairs at the Bank of the Montreal.

Wink made the majority of its profit in May when it earned 61 per cent of their total.

They said the dramatic increase in revenue was attributed mainly to their presence at the Home and Cottage Show in May in Haliburton. A space at the show was donated by Wayne Hussey. Other factors were exposure in the local media, word of mouth and improved time management in terms of production and having a supply of product.

The group agreed that the program would benefit from starting before December, as the program's end conflicted with the end of school this month.

The success was attributed to their shareholders and the mentors.

A not-for-profit organization, Junior Achievement has received financial support from the Haliburton County Development Corporation, the Haliburton Rotary Club and the Haliburton District Lions Club.

Sara McGriskin also recognized the support from program partner Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club of Haliburton, Haliburton Foodland, Parker Pad and Printing, Walkers Home Hardware and Heather Kennedy.

Curran said he has every intention of continuing with the venture now that the program has concluded. Karaguesian, the company's president, feels a sense of satisfaction having been able to run a successful business.

"To look at those coasters and our business cards and the money we made just to show, wow, we actually started this and were successful. It feels nice. It's not really about the $50 cheque we might get at the end, but it's nice to know that this is our little company," she said.

Forum explores steps to improved economy

ANGELICA BLENICH

Staff Reporter

Ideas for economic development continue to swirl in Dysart et al as the municipality hosted the second workshop on June 16 at the Haliburton Curling Club.

Following on the heels of a well-attended inaugural workshop held this past April, community leaders and politicians continued dialogue on the topic of economic development for the area and began putting together strategies to tackle the issue.

Six key themes were identified from the first session and working groups explored the topics of business retention and expansion, housing, youth retention, environment and the economy, culture and recreation and community groups and volunteers.

Facilitated by representatives from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, the workshop had participants discuss strategies and next steps for each of the areas of interest.

Some of the standout discussion points included the lack of year-round customers to support the local economy, a need for succession planning for existing businesses and attracting capital investment.

Speaking on behalf of the housing group, Bram Lebo suggested reimagining the village core and envisioning a community that was inviting to seniors.

"The first thing we need to do is plan what we want," he said. "That vision would be the responsibility of council ... first put your stake in the sand and say this is the town we'd like to have 20 years from now and spend a year or so figuring out what that vision looks like. Spend another year figuring out the how ... and then spend the next 20 years or so building it one piece at a time as we can afford it."

In regards to business retention, Aaron Walker reported to the group ideas such as business incentives and a head-hunting honorarium, to reward individuals who are successful in attracting new business to the area.

"One of our issues is commercial tax rates and the cost to be in business in general," said Walker. "So an objective of ours is to give incentives for creating new business and putting a moratorium ... on raising the commercial tax rate."

The group also suggested reviewing the official plan and how it affects commercial development.

Looking at the environment and economy, suggestions that came forward included finding an alternative waste management system, preferably one that could be county-wide.

Another critical issue is that of clean water, which contributes to the economic activity in the area.

In terms of culture and recreation, Jim Blake on behalf of his group spoke on creating a recreation plan, similar to a cultural plan, that would look at infrastructure, facilities, programming, resources, etc.

"There is a possibility of doing this in-house, with the support of agencies," said Blake.

Ideas for youth retention included connecting students with jobs through lake associations, who could do more to promote economic opportunities.

Moving forward the municipality is looking at striking an economic development committee at the next working session, scheduled for August, said Reeve Murray Fearrey.

"I really want to thank you for some great ideas," he said. "We are anxious to work with you. I think it's very positive."

Kennisis Lake dam biggest expense at $4.9M

aging infrastructure, following a funding announcement last fall. In total the dam will cost about $4.9 million, said Devolin.

"It will be completely rebuilt and replaced and it will be pinned," he said.

The announcement follows years of effort for Devolin, who was part of a working group created to examine the needs of the TSW over the past few years.

"When I was elected in 2004 ... it was pretty clear to everybody that the Trent-Severn Waterway had been underfunded on the capital side for years," said the MP.

The committee compiled a report titled It's All About the Water, which included an analysis of the TSW and an estimate of $280- to $290-million needed for the waterway.

The MP said in recent years it became more apparent how badly the TSW needed to be addressed, particularly after the Minden flood in 2013.

"One of the reasons I wanted to come here today ... if you recall the water was within about four inches of that header on the bridge," said Devolin, pointing to the Bobcaygeon Road bridge in downtown Minden. "What was recognized is if the water had risen and started pushing on that, that whole bridge could have washed away, which would have been a logistical nightmare for Minden and another huge cost."

Following the flood, Parks Canada sent in a team to review the affected structures and whether further damage had been done, said Devolin.

It was through this analysis the infrastructure needs became more apparent, which put an onus on the federal government, said Devolin.

"We were told about two months ago that the government finally had developed its comprehensive response to this," he said. "This is not only the biggest capital announcement in my 11 years, but it's also, in this region, a quarter of a billion dollars that's going to get spent."

In addition to infrastructure improvements, $1 million of the funding will go towards updating the water monitoring equipment and to build a better computer monitoring system to manage the water.

"The system that the Trent-Severn is currently using is essentially what they've been using for 100 years," said Devolin.

The MP said the work is going to start immediately, with tenders going out for local contractors, and he expects completion to take place over the next two years.

Devolin, who is not seeking re-election in the upcoming fall election, is very pleased with the funding and what it will mean for his riding.

"This is the biggest piece of federal infrastructure in our riding ... now what you have to do is keep investing. So I'll let the next MP fight that fight."

Abbey Gardens plans for expansion

The future of Abbey Gardens could include an auditorium, a hotel or lodge and a restaurant.

Owners of the property John and Thea Patterson want to rezone a portion, said municipal planning director Pat Martin at a June 22 meeting of Dysart et al council.

Located on Highway 118 in West Guilford, the Abbey Gardens property includes retail space, a brewery and agriculture. "They're moving into tourism now, so they are looking at festivals and events," said Martin. "So they're looking down the road. This is not something that's going to happen right away."

Some of the expansion could include a hotel and restaurant and a barn to host events. The rezoning application is for 50 acres of the property. The proposed area is zoned Extractive Industrial, Rural Type 1 and Environmental Protection. The applicants are requesting the zoning be amended to Highway-Commercial 27, Rural Type 1 and Environmental Protection. The area was formerly a gravel pit, and the owner is in the process of surrendering the active aggregate licence, according to Martin's report.

Reporting elder abuse crucial

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

Bob Stinson has heard some sad stories. The chairman of the Haliburton chapter of CARP said he established the local advocacy group to help give a voice to seniors who need it, like those suffering from elder abuse.

June 15 was named World Elder Abuse Awareness Day to create a discussion about seniors in abusive, isolated, or neglected situations.

Raeann Rideout, regional consultant with Elder Abuse Ontario, estimates that between two and 10 per cent of seniors will suffer from abuse or neglect. Rideout said the number of seniors affected can be hard to determine because not every case is reported.

"There's no real system set up in terms of data collection," said Rideout. "It's only the reported cases we hear about."

Stinson said friends and neighbours witnessing abuse may hesitate to report it for fear of repercussions on both the victim and themselves.

"If the government wants people to report these situations, they need to provide protection," he said.

Karen Anderson, elder abuse services co-ordinator for Community Care in the City of Kawartha Lakes, says that if treatment of a senior is uncomfortable to watch or hear, it should be reported.

"Don't keep it to yourself just because you think it might make it worse," she said. "Statistics show elder abuse will always escalate over time if it's not stopped."

Confusion around which agency might best serve a senior in crisis can also hinder reporting, however Rideout says that's where she comes in.

Guiding seniors and other concerned to the appropriate agencies to report cases of abuse or seek help when a senior can no longer care for herself is Rideout's job, one she hopes will become less necessary as awareness about elder abuse grows.

"It's about promoting dignity and respect," she said.

Anderson no longer covers the Haliburton area, but is working with the Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes elder abuse prevention network to bring an event to the area in October to educate seniors and the public on what types of community services are available to them and when an intervention may be required.

Types of elder abuse can range from financial, which account for about 49 per cent of cases, to physical, emotional, and sexual abuse, or even neglect. Neglect can happen when a caregiver fails to provide the necessities of life to a senior in his care, or when a senior who is isolated from family and friends cannot care for himself and cannot reach out for help.

Nearly 60 cases of elder abuse were reported to Anderson in 2014, 15 of those in the Haliburton area. That number is predominately females and seniors living at home, with health practitioners and service agencies being the largest reporters.

The suspected abuser is an adult child or other family member in 55 per cent of cases.

Anderson says there is a rise in neglect and self neglect, with as many as 15 per cent of reported cases being attributed to neglect. Anderson attributes the rise to families that are scattered and not able to check in on loved ones as often.

Stinson hopes his group can help alleviate the growing problem of isolation in addition to tackling another challenge facing area seniors.

"Our biggest concern is housing for seniors," he said.

CARP is working with the Haliburton County Co-operative sub-committee and Solterra Co-Housing Ltd. to bring co-housing units to Haliburton. The units would house four to six seniors, in singles or couples, in multi-unit dwellings. Each senior or couple would have a private bedroom, bathroom, and sitting area, with a common kitchen and living/dining space. The house would also feature something Stinson calls a "house mom," a paid support worker to deliver groceries a few times a week, check on residents, and help with major chores and some cooking.

The set-up would help seniors to retain independence while keeping costs down, as well as eliminating the isolation many seniors experience.

"They'll have a community that supports each other," said Stinson.

Stinson hopes to have an announcement surrounding the project this summer, but says it might be two more years before the first house is available.

"It's really hard to get it off the ground," he said. "We don't have any money and that's the stumbling block."

Rideout says if friends or neighbours suspect someone is a victim of elder abuse or neglect, they can contact the senior safety line. The line will help callers to talk about the abuse and report it when they're ready. They can also point people in the right direction to decide which agency might be of the most help to them in cases of neglect and self-neglect. The line is a 24/7 operation and can be reached at 1-866-299-1011.

Council approves funding for new hood fan in Lloyd Watson Centre kitchen

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the June 22 meeting of Highlands East council.

As renovations continue for the Lloyd Watson Centre, council approved a budget of more than $20,000 to have a new hood fan designed and installed in the kitchen of the community centre June 22.

In a presentation to council property supervisor Jim Alden said although a new hood fan is not in the approved budget for the project, the existing hood fan is now too small for the stove in the kitchen and needs to be replaced.

Sections of the roof will need to be removed in order to install the fan. Alden said now is the time to complete the project while renovations to the roof are already under way.

The size of the hood fan means it will need to be specially designed. The design and construction of the fan is going to cost $15,695, with installation including gas fitting, an electrician, and a spray system, will cost about $5,000. The money hadn't been previously budgeted for, but council said they would find the money in the recreation reserve fund.

"We can't do without it," said Alden. "If they're going to do cooking classes, they've got to have it."

The expense was approved unanimously.

Don't park here: Wilberforce village dock gets new regulations

Council unanimously approved a bylaw placing new restrictions on the use of the Wilberforce village dock.

The new bylaw specifies the dock is for loading and unloading of people, boats, and chattel only. Boats will no longer be allowed to park at the dock or the surrounding area for more than three consecutive hours, or between the hours of 9 p.m. and 7 a.m. Boats in violation of the new bylaw will be subject to towing.

In addition to the new bylaw the dock, which includes a 20 foot easement around the property, has been approved for a new fence to help enforce the regulations and keep people from parking boats on the property.

Off-road vehicle bylaws updated in time for summer

Regulations for the highway driving of off-road vehicles were updated to reflect provincial standards.

NDP MPP John Vanthof had a private member's bill successfully passed in February. The bill allows side-by-side and two-up vehicles to be driven on the highway and councils across the county are updating bylaws to reflect the new changes.

The bylaw updates include restrictions that the types of vehicles added be in compliance with the highway traffic act, including making sure all mirrors, lamps, and reflectors are up to date. Those without the proper equipment can be charged under the Highway Traffic Act.

Strategic plan continues to be developed

In co-operation with agricultural and rural economic development advisor Heather Candler, Curtis Tighe, trails and economic development staff member, updated Highlands East council on the progress of formulating a new strategic plan for the area.

The refreshed plan focuses on tourism and providing growth to businesses by attracting tourists to the area, and increased support of environmental preservation, and increased attention on social services including providing food and housing to all residents.

Joint committees will meet in September to review the new document and provide feedback.

Season of scams

LOCAL OPP ARE WARNING residents about a new threat: the tax scam.

In this particular ruse, con artists posing as Canada Revenue Agency representatives attempt to trick their victims into paying taxes they don't owe.

The scammers say payment has to be made right away to avoid a fine. According to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre, "in some cases, individuals are told they will be deported if the taxes are not paid right away."

Scary stuff.

For county resident Sarah Smith (her first name has been changed to protect her further), the scammers on the other end of the phone not only pulled the CRA line on her, they berated her.

Luckily, their lack of professionalism alerted Smith to the fraud and she noted the caller's Ottawa-area number. She took that number to her lawyer, who helped her confront the criminals. However, the number was soon disconnected as the culprits moved on to other numbers and other potential victims.

The CRA scam is just the latest in a long line of ever more inventive ways criminals are dreaming up to dupe people into giving away their money.

Most of us have been on the receiving end of the "Windows" calls. You know the ones: a man posing as a technician says there's a problem with your computer he can help you with as long as you provide him access to your machine.

Then there's the "grandparents scam," where an impostor grandchild calls in a panic. He's in trouble, the scammer says, and needs money sent to Western Union right away. Often this one involves the "grandchild" being stuck in another country with no one to help.

Recently, county residents have been peppered with automated calls from a company alleging to be Marriott Hotels congratulating them on winning free rooms. All that's needed? A credit card number, of course.

Scams are becoming more sophisticated, police say, with better technology available to con artists and more of our personal information floating around the Internet to be exploited. Think of how much information you put out there every day – or week – online. Pictures and names of family members, email addresses and even phone numbers are regularly entered online and available to be used.

Con artists can be persuasive. It's how they make their money; they're good at it. With a smorgasbord of personal information at their fingertips, the scales can tip in their favour.

That's why it's important to keep these tips from the anti-fraud centre in mind whenever someone calls asking for personal information or financial details:

1. Don't act too quickly. Take time to make sure what you're being told is true.
2. Think critically. Does it seem right that this organization or person is calling you?
3. Make the call yourself. Find the appropriate number (on your own) – for the CRA, your grandchild, Microsoft, the Marriott – and verify the story you were told.

And, as the anti-fraud centre says: "If you have doubts about a caller, your best defence is to simply hang up. It's not rude – it's smart."

For more details, go to www.anti-fraudcentre-centreantifraude.ca/ or call 1-888-495-8501.

These hands

One of my favourite songs, by Dave Gunning, is called These Hands. In the song he asks over and over again "what shall I do with these hands of mine... the world could use a hero of the human kind... so tell me what shall I do with these hands of mine?"

He acknowledges that some hands have held the world together, some hands have fought wars forever, some hands comfort a baby crying, some bless a million people, some give voice to a nation, some save lives, some create art, some build houses and some hands wrote "the times they are a changing."

I listen to the song over and over because it inspires me to think about how I use my own hands in the world. What is it that I want to do with my one and only precious life? How can I, and do I, contribute?

We all have hands and hearts and we all have gifts to give. We are all unique and creative in our own ways. It is each our responsibility to use our hands, and our hearts, in a way that is a positive force for our family, friends, community and work.

I think this is a good idea to contemplate as we head into our summer. Summer is the busiest time of year in the Haliburton Highlands and we all have to make the best of it so that we can earn enough money to live here year round. Whether we work behind the deli at Foodland, are a waitress at Maple Ave or any other restaurant, work at gas station or at the medical centre we are all ambassadors for Haliburton County. Each one of us makes a difference every time we use our hands and our hearts to be kind, thoughtful, helpful and generous. Every one of us can make (or break) a visitor's day by the way that we engage and offer good customer service. We won't get it right or perfect every time, but we can keep trying and working at it. Every day is always a new fresh beginning.

I also think all of us adults, when we go on vacation, need to think about how we are treating the people who serve us. We are all guilty of being overtired, stressed and impatient. We all have busy lives and when we go on vacation we have to make a conscious effort to slow down and find the groove of the community we are visiting. We need to embrace the local customs. We need to be kind and respectful in order to get the service that we desire.

My friends just came back from a two-week trip to the Azores and they were full of stories of the local culture and routines that they fell in love with while on the island.

Tourism is a two-sided relationship and it takes the hosts and the guests to work together to make it a positive experience. It all starts with setting the right intention and working towards it. We each need to show up every day with the best possible attitude. So tell me, what will you do with your hands and heart this summer?

Ruby, we've got to talk

TO BE HONEST, I was surprised that every bear in the immediate vicinity didn't come running to our house. You see, Jenn placed a beautiful raspberry pie right beneath the open window to cool. And it smelled delicious. "You....you....you made us pie?" I asked.

"Actually, I made it for Ruby," she replied. "But we can both have a piece, so long as we leave enough for her."

Ruby is Jenn's 90-year-old friend, who happens to be a resident in Highland Wood long-term care home. They have a wonderful relationship and Jenn visits her each Monday evening for a chat that they both seem to get a whole lot out of.

Lately, I've been getting a lot out of it too.

Every now and again, Jenn will take notice of something Ruby said regarding the foods she likes. And, if Jenn has the energy and time, she'll make some to take to Ruby. It's something she enjoys doing, but it certainly doesn't hurt that Ruby has great taste in food.

Before the raspberry pie, Jenn made this fantastic broccoli salad with bacon bits. Prior to that, we hadn't bought bacon in nearly a year. That's the power Ruby wields.

This got me thinking: Ruby, you and I need to talk.

You see, I've got a list of things that I would really like Jenn to make. And you have the influence to make it happen.

So have you ever considered a new career as a paid lobbyist?

Right off the bat, I can think of a few things to put on my culinary bucket list: my sister's bean salad, lemon meringue pie, chocolate cake, scalloped potatoes, chicken pot pie, lasagna and beef jerky just to name a few. I've got more ideas too, once we get through that list.

So Ruby, if you read this, here's what I'm proposing: You subtly hint that you like any or all of these foods – I'm thinking one of them each week or so – and I'll do my part here to have the ingredients on hand when Jenn makes mention of it.

It'll be the perfect crime. And no one needs to know but us.

Look, it's not that I can't cook this stuff. It's more like Jenn can do so much better. She's got a knack for cooking. She says it's because she actually follows the recipe and doesn't substitute ketchup for any ingredient she doesn't have.

I guess that could work.

This, of course, is neither here nor there. What's important is we keep encouraging this behaviour. I mean, it's for a good cause, right?

I'm thinking of the things I – I mean we – really like. We should hint that larger batches are more economical. That way we might get more than say, one serving of pie.

I've hinted at this before, but she sees right through me. But I suspect if you do the same, she won't suspect a thing. You've got that sweet old lady thing down pat. When I try to look cute, she asks me if I'm feeling OK.

Right now you are probably asking yourself, "What's in it for me?"

Well, Ruby, here's your chance to provide comfort and joy – as well as the odd batch of pasta salad – to a human being you hardly know.

That's the ultimate in altruism and it's really good for your karma, too.

If that doesn't work, how about cold hard cash? I'll pay up to two bucks a slice for pie. We can work out detailed rates later.

Whatever you decide, let's keep this between you and me. Jenn doesn't really need to know.

Tell me if you are in though. And try to decide as quickly as you can.

I've really got a hankering for lemon meringue pie.

The state must be neutral

To the Editor,

I read with interest your article concerning the religious invocation at county councils, in your edition of June 16.

Messrs. Devolin and Fearrey are mistaken in their belief that this is legal in Canada.

The notion that Algonquin Highlands Deputy-reeve Liz Danielsen "doesn't have to be in the room" during the prayer is rude and disrespectful.

On April 15, two months ago, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled unanimously in the case of Mouvement laïque quebécois and Alain Simoneau vs. Saguenay City, docket #35496, that all prayer at council meetings is illegal.

The court said that "the state must be neutral" and not favour any set of beliefs or disbeliefs above others.

The justices ordered the city of Saguenay to pay Mr. Simoneau $33,200 in damages.

Since then, the councils of Ottawa and many other municipalities have complied with this ruling.

The municipality of Dysart et al has been happy to receive property taxes from my atheist hands for decades.

Will we taxpayers be on the hook for damages when our council is taken to court?

Now, I sincerely request that taxpayers like me be respected.

It is right, it is moral, and it is the law of the land.

Tom Needham

Thank God for Murray Fearrey

To the Editor,

RE: "God remains part of county inaugural ceremony," Echo, June 16

Brent Devolin agrees with Murray Fearrey that the invocation should remain a part of the inaugural ceremony, but cautions that councils across Canada are increasingly secularizing their proceedings. If ever there was a need for God's help, it is certainly in the governing of a country, a county or a municipality. A recent poll by CBC concerning removing "God" from our national anthem met with the largest response to a CBC poll ever, with 86 per cent of respondents saying to leave God in our anthem.

It is time to tell the 14 per cent, as Murray says, "If you don't like it, [prayer], I guess you don't have to be in the room."

SIRCH cooks up another year of new ventures

ANGELICA BLENICH

Staff Reporter

Whether it's the 5,000 kilometres volunteers drive to deliver meals prepared in the community kitchen or the more than 270 butterflies that were recently released, there is no shortage of ways to measure the impact SIRCH Community Services is having on Haliburton County.

Another year of success was celebrated at the organization's annual general meeting on June 17 within the Great Hall at the Haliburton School of the Arts.

New programs and initiatives were highlighted, including the successful Cook it Up program, which was held on Mondays from March to May in Haliburton's Baked and Battered restaurant.

Focused on training individuals in cooking and restaurant skills, the program offered a free, three-course lunch that was served with a theme each week.

With eight trainees involved, Cook it Up served more than 600 meals in total and resulted in employment opportunities for the majority of the participants.

One of SIRCH's most recent initiatives, the inaugural Release of the Butterflies, was a shining example of what can be accomplished with some creativity and support from the community, as it raised $18,000 for bereavement programming.

Other expanding programs include Thrift Warehouse, which started with one location in Haliburton and now has two busy locations, the second in Bancroft, and plans are in the works for a third warehouse in Minden.

SIRCH took over the Haliburton location in April 2014 and changed the business model, which resulted in 12 jobs for the area.

SIRCH also got a cash infusion of $50,000 from the Haliburton County Development Corporation to assist with the Thrift Warehouse, as was reported by auditor Erik Ellis.

Two volunteers were recognized during the AGM for their continued support and dedication to SIRCH programs.

Seven-year volunteer Cathy McIlmurray was the recipient of the Glen Flood award for her work with the community kitchen.

McIlmurray, who is now volunteering with the Need A Hand program, is a committed supporter of the many programs SIRCH oversees.

"She has always set an example of great volunteerism with her dedication to the task at hand and creative ideas," said Alisha Lafleur, food initiatives co-ordinator.

Receiving her award with tears in her eyes, McIlmurray spoke on the bond she created with her fellow community kitchen volunteers, who became a source of strength for her when she was diagnosed with cancer.

"Without community kitchen and SIRCH, I wouldn't have had those people," she said. "Your community gives back to you, you give to them."

Since it started, community kitchen has grown from preparing 30 meals to now making more than 3,600 meals a year, said Lafleur.

Longtime Community Kitchen volunteer Cathy McIlmurray, left, was recognized at SIRCH's annual general meeting on June 17 with the Glen Flood award for her contributions to the not-for-profit organization. McIlmurray was given the award by Alisha Lafleur, food initiatives coordinator for SIRCH. ANGELICA BLENICH Staff

Those meals are delivered all over the county, totalling more than 5,000 kilometres travelled during the past year.

Hospice volunteer Bev Hunter was also recognized and thanked for her work with SIRCH, which has come to an end as she moves out of the community.

"Together the board would like to thank each dedicated member of SIRCH's team, our volunteers and our staff, for the many ways with dignity and grace you help our clients achieve their personal goals," said board president Barb Fawcett.

A financial audit provided by Collins Barrow showed that revenue for 2015 totalled $987,102, up from 2014, which came in at $774,367.

Expenses for 2015 were $984,770, also up from 2014, which had a total of $812,014 in expenses. The biggest part of expenses is salaries and benefits, which cost $545,055. The biggest part of the revenue stream was government grants, which totalled $691,478. In 2015 SIRCH fundraised more than $112,000.

Nominees were voted onto the board of directors are Wendy Ladurantaye, Tammy LaRue, Barb Fawcett and Aerin Greidanus. Completing the second year of a two-year term are Anne-Marie Cyr, Dianne Brown and Shanthi Bascombe.

Point in Time aims to lead region in mental health services

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

Staff, board members, and community members for A Point in Time, Centre for Children, Youth and Parents, came together to congratulate each other and celebrate another year at their annual general meeting June 8.

Speaking about the value of their volunteers, Point in Time honoured several of its members for their years of service, including Kelly Harrison who has spent 20 years with the organization.

"I'm really lucky to get to work with such a talented, dedicated group of people who are really passionate about what they do," said executive director Marg Cox.

An auditor's report revealed a financially healthy organization with no abnormalities that was accepted unanimously by the voting members present. The report showed that the not-for-profit agency's largest single expense for last fiscal year was salaries and benefits, which total more than $1.3 million. The organization has 31 full- and part-time employees. That financial output exceeds the amount received by the organization's largest single contributor, the Ministry of Children and Youth services, by $20,000.

Other expenses included $59,000 for staff travel to 22 conferences, nearly $25,000 for staff training and recruitment, and nearly $166,000 for a category titled "allocated central administration" which is a category the province funds, providing for the agency's expenses such as liability insurance, administration expenses, and building maintenance and repairs. Building accommodation expenses exceeding the amount covered by the province were $125,000, and itemized separately. Comparatively program costs totalled $129,700. Total expenditures for the year were just more than $2.1 million.

In the president's report co-authored by president Marie Gage and Cox, a statement reads, "We continue to strive for efficiencies to keep as much funding as possible directed to service in our community."

Gage lauded the hard work of the staff, volunteers and community partners of the centre.

"I really feel proud of the strength of those partnerships," said Gage. "I wish to thank the community partners and our staff for making sure those partnerships are well-nourished and looked after."

In the written report Gage says the centre served 800 children and youth during last fiscal year, an increase of 14 per cent from the year before.

The report also said agency has completed four new documents – the Strategic Plan 2015-2019, Operational Plan, Scorecard, and the Performance Measurement Framework – meant to outline its future plans and initiatives, and measure its effectiveness within the community and the effectiveness of its services.

The agency has applied to be the lead agency for Peterborough, City of Kawartha Lakes, and Haliburton service area during the "Moving on Mental Health" system transition, an initiative by the provincial government to make mental health services more accessible for youth and children and provide increased support for that age group. The written strategic plan presented was a portion of the plan that outlined operations and the scorecard for 2015.

The scorecard, part of a new focus on metrics and the plan to increase effectiveness, measured how close to completion or implementation each review or new initiative is. Of the 49 initiatives identified by the agency, 33 are expected to be completed on or before June 30.

Kelly Harrison, right, is recognized for 20 years of service with Point in Time Centre for Children, Youth and Parents by executive director Marg Cox at their annual general meeting June 8. ELIZABETH BATE staff

"We're now able to really benchmark and measure how we're doing on all of these things," Cox said.

Initiatives include establishing new partnerships with children's or mental health services in Peterborough and the Highlands, training staff in LGBTQ and diversity issues, creating updated youth engagement and communications strategies for its programming, and developing a youth suicide prevention strategy and structure to be completed by Dec. 31. Point in Time said that it was at or ahead of completion targets for all 49 initiatives as of March.

Cox outlined the three strategic directions of the organization: to be rooted in client service, to advocate in a strong voice for the community, and to be committed to organization effectiveness and sustainability.

"These are the three things we're going to focus on over the next while," she said. "We're really pleased we've been able to submit this plan as part of our lead agency application."

The evening's keynote presenter was Veronica Beynon, 9, the author of a children's book about her family's experience with autism.

Beynon offered insight into the life she shares with her autistic sister, and acceptance of children with autism in addition to reading her book My Sister has Autism – And That's OK!

Beynon, a Bancroft resident, co-wrote the book with her mother when she was just six to help other families affected by autism.

"It's not just a story," Beynon said. "It tells people about autism and how it can just be amazing."

Celebrating 80

GERALD IRISH

A Senior's Moment

Happy birthday to me. I made it. I finally reached the big 80.

What a wonderful time I had as my family and friends prepared for and presented to me a birthday party par excellence. The majority of the work, as usual, being done by our daughter and son and of course, my wife.

The venue chosen for this celebration of longevity of life was fantastic and allowed the people assembled the ability to move about the facility quite freely renewing old acquaintances while creating new memories with new friends.

Words cannot express the love and gratitude that I have for all the people who worked to make this dream a reality and the warmth I felt from those who attended this party for me. It was worth waiting 80 years to have it happen.

Every member of my family knows how much I love him and her. Not one of you forgot the old man's big day. But my love for you extends beyond your abilities to plan and organize and carry out a party. My love for you fills my heart all (well almost all) the time.

Once again, thank you to everyone who had anything to do with helping me celebrate 80 years on this earth.

Love to all of you and special love to Joan and our families.

Scam artists have more resources than ever before

RCMP Corp. Josee Rausseau of the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre said the nation-wide scam relies on the use of several different numbers that are either temporary or spoofed, and that they keep changing.

Sarah Smith, a Haliburton County resident whose first name has been changed for this article, said the man who gave her an Ottawa area number to call back after threatening court action, answered when she and her lawyer called back in an attempt to get more information about the scam.

"He said if you don't phone this number, you'll end up in court," she said.

Echo staff called the number on several occasions and received only hold music. On a third attempt to reach the number staff found it disconnected.

OPP Const. Dianna Dauphinee said the scammers do not need to be in Canada to spoof Canadian numbers. If the calls are originating in another country as Dauphinee suspects, it makes it hard to both stop the calls and arrest the perpetrators.

Smith was able to identify that the caller was a scam artist when he asked for her address and other verifying information, which a legitimate caller would already have. She took action by calling a lawyer to help her investigate the call and the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre to report the incident.

Dauphinee encouraged those getting calls or other communication they suspect are fraudulent to report them to take similar action and report them to the fraud centre and the OPP.

"Ideally we like to know the type of scams going on in our community," she said.

Smith said the man who called her spoke in a heavy accent and was intimidating and belligerent, yelling at her in addition to threatening court action. She worries that other seniors in the area will be targeted and will be nervous in the face of such threats.

"Seniors would be the ones that would get hit first," she said. "They live alone and they get a little bit afraid."

Leon said seniors and other vulnerable persons are often targets of these kinds of scams, but anyone could receive a call.

"It doesn't matter how old you are, these are things that are all very near and dear to us," he said.

Leon said the CRA will never call and threaten or intimidate those facing a tax reassessment. A letter will be sent, never a phone call or an email, and they will give those owing more money several repayment options that can be renegotiated if necessary.

Smith's caller also claimed to have sent her a CRA "form 501." Echo staff found the closest available form the CRA has to a form 501 is form IT501, which has been discontinued and relates to business capital costs allowances. This form would have nothing to do with a tax reassessment, nor would it be sent arbitrarily to residents.

Rausseau said criminals now have the equipment to make very convincing forms and letters to solicit money or add validity to their scam, but anything that seems like it is not right should be verified with the real CRA, who, as professionals won't exhibit the behaviour of Smith's caller.

"They won't make threats. They are government employees and they do have a standard of work," she said.

Warning against giving out even the smallest pieces of identifying information to unknown persons, such as a full name, address, or social insurance number, Leon said these are all small pieces of information that could lead to fraudsters obtaining credit cards or other funds through identity theft. While banks and credit reporting agencies are understanding of these situations and work with policing agencies to rectify the situation, it can take awhile to restore a victim's credit rating, and missing funds may never be restored.

"Your golden years should be spent doing things you enjoy, not correcting the wrongs people have committed against you," Leon said. "We never want to see anyone lose what's theirs."

Although it's often hard to catch phone scammers, Leon said it does happen, but only when victims make a complaint.

"Usually what happens is they don't make a complaint because they're embarrassed. They're ashamed," he said.

In addition to being vigilant about their own information, Leon said family members should look out for each other to make sure everything is on the up and up.

Adult children of aging parents should discuss scams to reduce the chances they will fall victim, he said.

Those who suspect they have been contacted by someone misrepresenting themselves can report it to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre at 1-888-495-8501. Those who have been the victims of fraud should contact their local OPP detachment to register a complaint.

Surfer sets goal for shortboard success

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Eagle Lake resident Pablo Bonilla is looking to a promising future after winning the long board event at the Canadian Surfing Championship from May 30 to 31 in Tofino, British Columbia.

Bonilla earned his spot last year at the second annual West Shore Huron Classic surfing competition on Oct. 18 after he was invited by the Blu Wave SUP team.

He travelled with wife Holly Bishop and represented The Great Lakes Surfers in the pro shortboard division and the pro amateur longboard divisions. They spent a few days in Tofino before the competition.

It came down to a bit of luck and reading the break of the waves, he said.

"I was stoked to have completed the mission, which was important. It's real easy to just fall off the plan in a matter of seconds if you don't get the wave. You got to do what you know with what you get. Little bit of luck. We're stoked to at least come home with one trophy," he said.

Conditions during the longboard event proved difficult, as the waves were only knee high after having been shoulder high days before.

Bonilla's resume includes representing Mexico at the ISA World Surfing Games in Portugal and is a three-time Mexican National Longboard Champion.

His longboard success came after a disappointing early exit in a short board preliminary heat.

A third place ended his hopes for an appearance in the finals.

Although he missed his berth to the next round by one place, Bonilla is confident he can do better next year. He attributes his poor run to not being able to find the best spots on the wave, as it was regularly occupied by other competitors. Four riders shared the wave during a heat. The next time he competes he'll take an aggressive approach as he did in the longboard, which resulted in the win.

Despite his preparation, spending a couple of days of surfing before the event, nerves came into play during the competition, he said.

"I was a bit nervous and I was trying real hard and a couple of inches away from having the right wave," he said. "It was after I lost that I realized I should be more aggressive. I got more aggressive in my longboard heat."

It's been four years since he has competed in surfing.

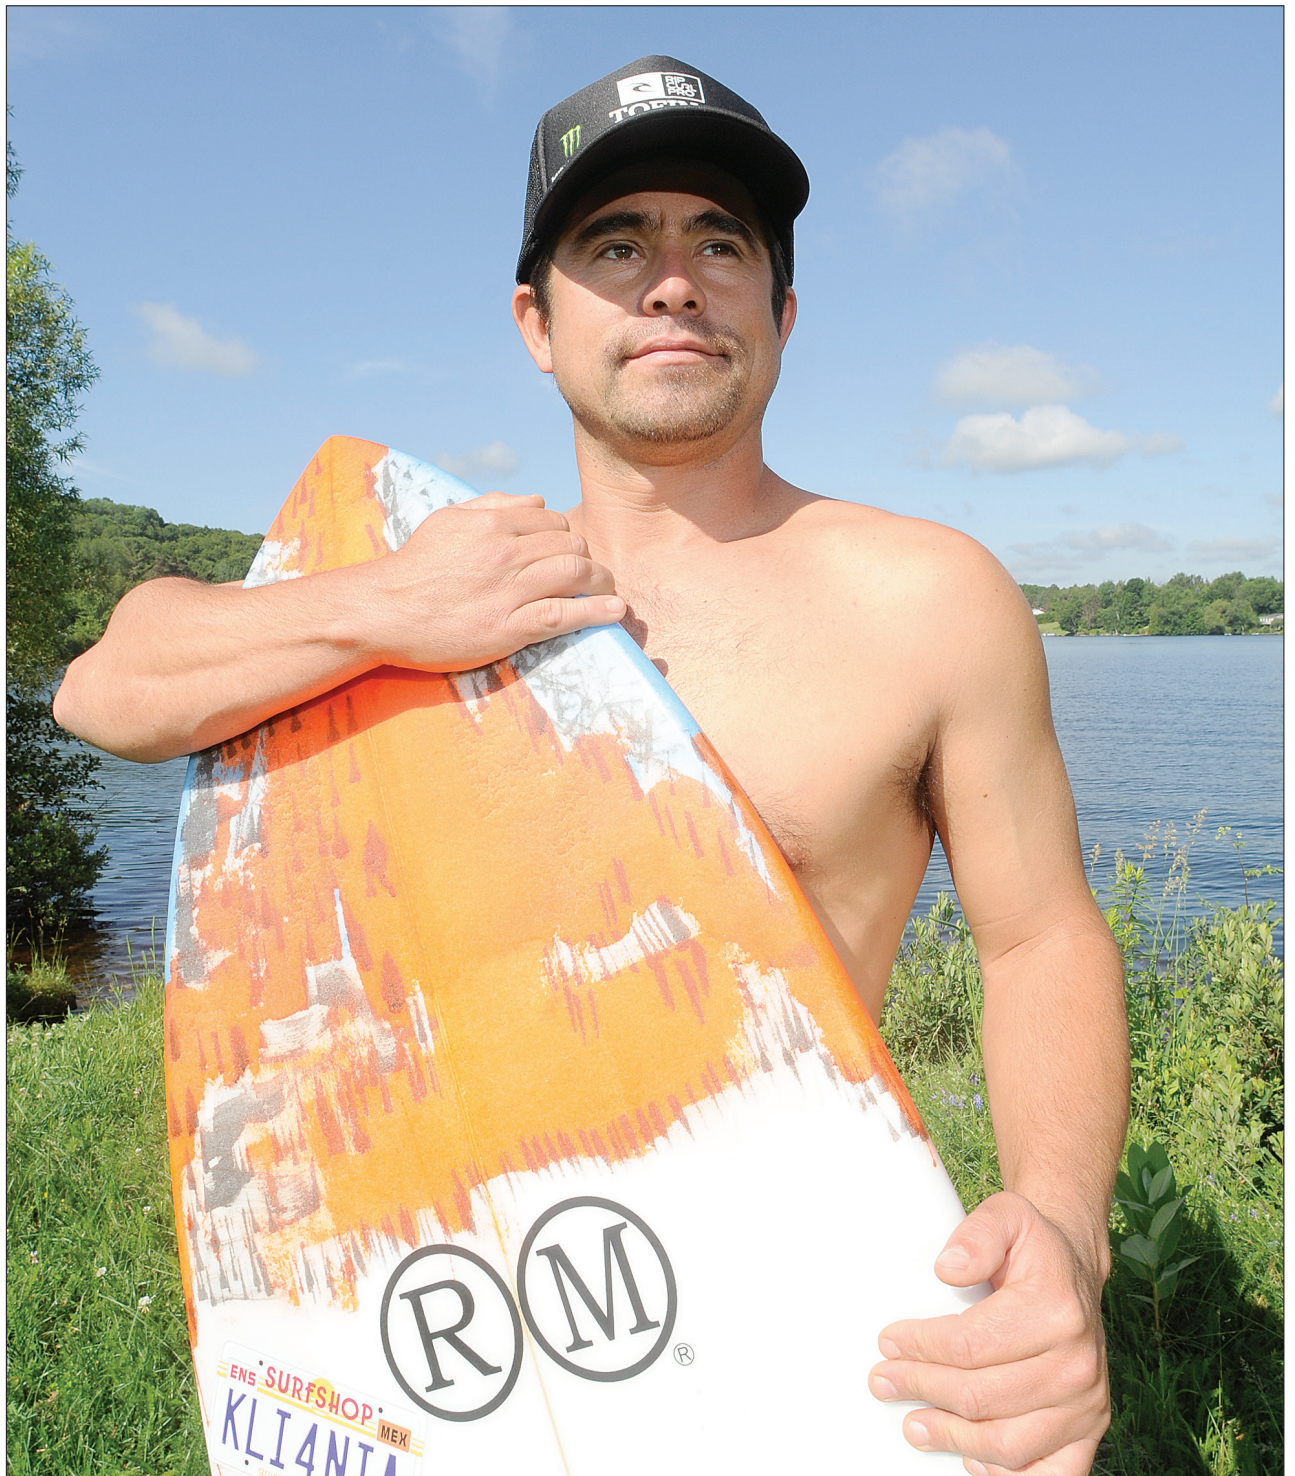

The scale of this event is on another level than just going on a vacation, he said.

"It was fun, but there was stress. It's not like you go out and hang out around the place and wait for the event. You get there and try to get comfortable with the waves," he said.

He prepared with a short run, stretching and checked the conditions.

"There is continuous planning and setting up to be [at my] best," he said.

While most riders are in their 20s, the 36-year-old

Eagle Lake resident Pablo Bonilla is thankful for the support he received after winning the long board event (award pictured bottom) at the Canadian Surfing Championship from May 30 to 31 in Tofino, British Columbia. Although he didn't reach the shortboard finals, he loved his experience in Tofino, representing The Great Lakes Surfers in the pro shortboard division and the pro amateur longboard divisions. The shortboard pictured was made by Rafael Manjarrez of the KLI4NIA Surfshop, who was supportive of Bonilla, producing and providing the bulk of his equipment at a discount./DARREN LUM Staff knows he isn't as flexible as he used to be when he was in his 20s, but believes the added body weight allows him to "hit the lip a little harder."

The difference in age isn't a concern for the confident rider.

"I always believe I can do anything just like anyone else," he said.

Originally from Rosarito Beach, Baja California, Mexico, Bonilla is intent on striving to be a presence on the surfing scene with improvements over a three year period.

He acknowledges his return to the championship won't happen without sponsorship and planning for work, life and his family that includes three daughters.

"With the glory comes a little bit of work," he said.

Bonilla and his family are planning to travel to Mexico for the winter where he will work on his surfing.

He loved the people and enjoyed the championship experience, but wants to improve and has every intention of returning.

"It was really nice to be over there. It will be nice to come back definitely," he said.

Notice of Public Community Meeting For a Project Proposal Under the Large Renewable Procurement

The proponent identified below is proposing to submit a proposal to the Independent Electricity System Operator (IESO) to design, build, and operate a Large Renewable Project for the generation of electricity under the IESO's Large Renewable Procurement (LRP).

The LRP is a competitive process for procuring large renewable energy projects generally larger than 500 kilowatts. At the conclusion of the LRP, the IESO may award contracts for successful projects up to the specified procurement targets for each renewable fuel: 300 megawatts (MW) for wind, 140 MW for solar, 75 MW for waterpower, and 50 MW for bioenergy.

This notice is being distributed to notify members of the public of a public community meeting that has been scheduled to discuss the Large Renewable Project proposal. Information regarding the proponent, the Large Renewable Project proposal, and the meeting details are described below.

This public community meeting is being held as part of the early community engagement requirements of the LRP. The public community meeting will present details about the Large Renewable Project and its proposed connection line. Representatives of the proponent will be available to discuss the Large Renewable Project and the overall LRP process. Should this Large Renewable Project be awarded a contract, the Large Renewable Project would need to obtain all required permits and approvals and conduct any further required community engagement activities.

Further details regarding the LRP are available at www.ieso.ca/lrp.

Proponent and the Large Renewable Project proposal

Proponent:	Algonquin Power Co.
Qualified Applicant from the LRP Request for Qualifications stage associated with the proponent:	Algonquin Power Co.
Name of the Large Renewable Project proposal:	Minden Solar Farm
Renewable fuel of the Large Renewable Project:	Ground Mount Solar
Proposed capacity of the Large Renewable Project (MW):	40 – 60 MW
Proposed connection point of the Large Renewable Project:	Connection to transmission circuit M80B / M81B, 230kV Transmission

Proposed location of the Large Renewable Project and proposed connection line

The Project is located North West of Hwy 21 at Allsaw, in the Minden Hills Township.

Linkert bakeshop opening to customers

community news

wilberforce

Hilda Clark
448-2018

Linkert Country Bakery has some good news for us. This bakery is well known for its fine fruit cakes. Janet Barker and staff also produce tasty pies, tarts, various types of buns etc. In recent years these have been available in local stores from spring to fall but not directly from the bake shop. This year starting this week on Thursday, June 25 the bake shop itself will be open to customers. The open times will be Thursdays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Fridays from 10a.m. to 6p.m. and Sundays "by chance."

Linkert Country Bakery is located at 2804 Loop Road just as you leave Wilberforce on the way to Harcourt. For a number of years Janet has concentrated on producing and marketing their fruit cake. Though that will continue, Janet will once again be pleased to welcome you to shop for a variety of baked good right at her bakery. Customers will be delighted.

Many are looking forward to the Strawberry Supper at the community centre in Highland Grove this Saturday, June 27. It is being served from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. This meal of cold turkey or beef with salads and of course strawberry dessert is always a popular one. Adults dine for only $12, children six to 12 pay $5 and younger ones eat free.

Julie at the Wilberforce library reminds us that a Craft and Story Time will be held there again this summer. It will be on Thursdays at 1 p.m. starting July 9 and running until Aug. 27. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

It's just a week until July 1. Canada Day celebrations will be held that day on the grounds of our Wilberforce Red Cross Outpost Historic House Museum. Festivities officially start at 11 a.m. but do come a little earlier. There will be music from the front porch, with flag raising by Legion and LA members, and a short time to sing and wave the flags. Then do visit the excellent Aprons exhibit inside the Outpost on your way to the back lawn for more socializing and free Canada Day cake and ice cream as well as tea, coffee and cold drinks. There will be sandwiches for sale by Heritage Guild members. In case of pouring rain head for the Lloyd Watson Centre.

Dignitaries come out for cadet annual inspection

community news

west guilford

Eleanor Cooper
754-2278

We are extremely pleased to have our son Andy back from Duncan, B.C. with his children, Sharaz and Logan. Andy was invited to come as Receiving Officer by 1129 Haliburton Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps for the 30th annual inspection of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which is sponsored by Branch 129 - Royal Canadian Legion.

The ceremony was attended by comrades Ed and Billie Pickard, Comrade Al Mayo, Comrade Keith Welborn, Barry Devolin, MP, Rick Brown, Army League representative Larry Blanchard, Haliburton County Paramedic Services, S/

Sgt. Chad Bark, and ASH. Gilliam Plumb as well as all the supportive family and friends of the corps.

The support of the Haliburton Highlanders Pipes and Drums was very much appreciated, Andy having been part of this band as well as a member of the first cadet corps.

Good wishes for better health to Cecilia Mackenzie-Scott who has recently had to spend time in Ross Memorial Hospital. Ever the volunteer despite adverse physical trials, Cecilia is again on the job as a volunteer driver for Community Support.

Congratulations to coach and teacher Carley Sisson, daughter of Blake and Delaine Sisson on 2015's Impact Award at the Athletic Banquet on June 10.

Euchre scores:

High - John Kerr and Ann McIvor
Low - Robert McIvor and Eleanor Cooper

Most Lone Hands - Ron Bain and Millie Payne

650 OBITUARIES

In Loving Memory of

Philip Murray Graham (VE3APL)

Ninety-one years old, of Minden, Ontario, he died on 14 June, 2015.

He is survived by his son Gordon and daughter-in-law Jane Adams of Rockcliffe Park, Ontario, and his granddaughter, Gillian Graham of Drayton Valley, Alberta. He is predeceased by his wife, Jane Caldwell McLaughlin.

Philip was life-long resident of Haliburton County where he was employed until his retirement, with Ontario Hydro. He served overseas in WWII as a WAG with the RCAF's 426 Squadron. Always a serious watcher of all things meteorological, he was recognized in 1999 by Environment Canada as the country's longest serving Volunteer Climate Observer. A 50 year Mason, a Past Master and a Grand Steward, he was a member of Minden's Arcadia Lodge #440 as well as a member of the Scottish Rite. He was a founding Scouter of the 1st Haliburton and 1st Minden Wolf Cub Packs as well as a founding member of the Minden Amateur Radio Club.

Prior to his death, Philip was a resident of Hyland Crest Senior Citizens Home where he was well and lovingly cared for by a very compassionate and understanding staff.

A Memorial Service will be held in the Chapel at the Gordon Monk Funeral Home, 127 Bobcaygeon Rd., Minden on Thursday, June 18, 2015 at 1:00 pm.

In lieu of flowers, a donation to the Haliburton Highland's Health Service would be appreciated.

Two summers and a winter ahead now - forever.

650 OBITUARIES

Valentine, Mark Joseph

It is with great sadness that the family announces the passing of Mark Joseph Valentine at the age of 50 years on Friday, June 19, 2015 at Health Sciences North. Beloved husband and best friend of Melissa Stevens. Devoted father to his girls, Mikayla and his twins Holly and Lindsay. He was one of the most kind and caring people who loved his wife and children more than anything in the world. He taught his girls how to ride their bikes, snowmobile, swim, and so much more. Dear son of Peter (predeceased) and Margaret (Moore) Valentine of Norland, ON. Cherished brother of Scott (Heather - predeceased), Lorie (Tom) Reddering. Loving uncle of Dan, Jack, Conar, Nicole, Hanna and Rachael. Mark could fix anything, build anything and do it better than anyone. He spent 25+ years working for INCO/VALE as a Millwright. Anyone who worked with Mark loved him just like his family and friends. He was the first one to jump in and help anyone who was in need, whether it was visiting a neighbour in the hospital, cutting someone's grass, loaning someone money (even if he barely had enough himself), taking a van-load of kids to dance, skating, soccer, or anywhere else they needed to go. He loved snowmobiling with his friends and his daughters. He also loved to spend time in Haliburton at his Mom's house on the lake, swimming and driving the boat for the girls to ski and tube. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him, and the world is a little darker without him here. Even in death, the donation of many of his organs has saved lives and will continue to help sick children and people in a variety of places. In keeping with Mark's wishes, there will be no visitation or service. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that a donation be made in his name to the Cardiovascular Thoracic ICU Centre at Health Sciences North. Arrangements entrusted to Ranger's Cremation and Burial Services Ltd., www.RangersSudbury.com

*In Memory of
A wonderful Husband,
Dad, Papa, Great Papa
& Great Great Papa,
who passed away
four years ago.
June 27, 2011*

*I cannot bring the old days back,
Your smile I cannot see,
I can only treasure the memories,
Of days that used to be.
Gone are the days
We used to share,
But in our hearts
You're always there,
Never more than a thought away,
Loved and remembered every day.*
